FARMING IN PENNSYLVANIA.

The theory which is sometimes advanced that Pennsylvania farm values are falling, many a tract formerly in crops being abandoned by the owners as neither saleable nor profitable for continued cultivation, will suffer some shock from the census report. It is clearly demonstrable that farm values have declined. Land by the acre is worth less than it was a few years ago, and the families which were accounted wealthy a generation ago are reduced to comparative poverty, and we must go to Illinois or Iowa to find farms that are quoted at the money price agricultural land used to bring in Eastern Pennsylvania.

Nevertheless, among all the counties of the various States, Lancaster county, in Pennsylvania, still leads in the value of farm buildings, in the value of agricultural products and in the value of the farms. There are many counties of a much greater area, but it is this fertile, well-titled district in Pennsylvania which holds the first place, farm buildings being valued at $23,147,920, annual product at $12,013,418, and gross income at $3,319,183. Closely following Lancaster county in the value of its farm buildings come Montgomery, Chester, Berks and Bucks, so that if this neighborhood has gone backward in some respects as an agricultural region there are compensations which still keep it well in the ranks of the most valuable counties in the East.

We are here the results of an intensive system of farming where land is carefully employed, not for the production of one grain, but various grains, fruits, vegetables, grapes, tobacco and farm animals, resulting in a total value of more than $12,000,000 annually, an enormous sum of money to be secured from the soil of a district whose area is only 140 square miles.

The agricultural pre-eminence of this neighborhood is largely due to the industry and frugal habits of the Pennsylvania Dutch. With them a farm is not an investment; it is a home, and they live and work there because they know nothing else and desire nothing else. The farms which are abandoned or are sold at a loss are those that the owners do not care to use. They belong to sons who without rural genius and fail to find the contentment in country life their fathers did. They must be left to town, and when they go they leave their estates at the mercy of tenants or laborers. The farms which are still being achieved in Lancaster, Berks and Montgomery counties are quite different. There the farmer resides within sight of his barn, traverses his own lands, and he, his wife and his sons and daughters are the farm hands, the women being in the dairies, if not in the open fields. That is the system under which farming may still be made to pay. It is the method by which the farmer succeeds in Europe, and to a decreasing extent, as population increases, it must become restricted in this country. Those for whom farming seems too laborious and demanding must be eliminated if agriculture is to be a successful and lucrative pursuit.—Philo Trench.

A FARMER ON POTATO PAISING.

Alfred F. Rentschler, of Windsor township, one of the largest farmers in Berks county, in a talk on potato growing, said:

"This year I only put out an ordinary planting of potatoes. I do not intend to overwork a thing merely because there happened to be a short yield last year. The farmers I know in my end of the county took the same practical view of the situation. It used to be said that a man could clear his farm in three years by raising potatoes alone, but that would leave a farm on its hands that was practically worthless, and he would have to begin over again."

"The trouble with raising potatoes is not that they provide no food for the stock, no straw for your manure, leave no roots in the ground, and drain the soil thoroughly."

"I have been quite fortunate with potatoes, and attribute this to changing my seed."

CONFESSIONS OF A WIFE.

The following extracts from the installment of the "Confessions" in the June Century:

"A man does not like to be loved too ardently, because I think a woman builds within her heart an altar to an unknown god, and leaves her happiest hours to steal away and worship. Miscellaneous tenderness is said to respond to tears. I do not find it so. Rather, I should say that a man's devotion fades under salt water, like a bathing-suit, proving unserviceable in the very element for which it is supposed to be adapted."

"I begin to feel now, as I used to do before we were married, that a woman must not expect much of a man; the man must expect much of himself; she must remind herself that he is a man and cannot. For a man we have been one, you and I."

"Men are so busy and so insolently strange. There is something cruel in their physical freedom."

A neighbor, a disengaged woman once told me that she and her husband came to the brink of a divorce over the first house they built (they are rather on unusually happy couple), and that the only way she prevailed on her husband to stay was to say: 'Have it all your own way; I will not express any other wish about this house.' Yet they lived in it comfortably for fifteen years."

"Something of the haze of a kind of impossibility—do not know how to express it—a power not herself which makes for silence, the terrible law which takes from a woman's love even that which it hath, and forbids her to love even her own husband."

Why is it that color means something less to me than it used to? Once I should have responded to the tinting of this room (it is really very good) in every nerve. Now, something is good to me to master so very much. I suppose that physical, too. Most things are, to women."

"There is a spiritual body?" Paul, I suppose. Nevertheless, there is philosophy as sound as it is subtle in these five words."

Of course the conductor never knew why she giggled when he remarked: "Careful, miss; always get off the car with your face in front!"—Baltimore News.

"Shortest highway, are you contributing anything for the benefit of the hostess this year?" "Yes, sir. I am having my washing done at a Chinese laundry."—Chicago Tribune.

"Yes," said Champeff, speaking of the millionaire, "the 'begins life without a pocket.' (Isn't that neat?) 'It is, indeed. Most men are born without even a pocket.'—Chicago Tribune.

MALARIA Invisible Enemy to Health
Malaria, bad air, and whether it comes from the low lands and marshes of the country, or the filthy sewers and drain pipes of the cities and towns, its effect upon the human system is the same.
These atmospheric poisons are breathed into the lungs and taken up by the blood, and the foundation of some long, debilitating illness is laid. Chills and fever, chronic dyspepsia, torpid and enlarged liver, kidney troubles, jaundice and biliousness are frequently due to this invisible foe, Malaria. Nervousness and indigestion are the result of the system becoming so polluted and sluggish that the poisons literally break through the skin, and carbuncles, boils, abscesses, ulcers and various eruptions of the face, throat and chest, depauperate the system, and threatening life itself. The life-giving properties of the blood, rendering it thin and watery, must be overcome and carried out of the system before the patient can hope to get rid of Malaria and its effects.
